1. Full name of applicant exactly as stated in Item 1A of Part I of Form ADV: Roanoke Asset Management Corp.	IRS Empl. Ident. No.: 13-2932679

Item of Form (identify)	Answer
	amount of securities purchased in an IPO is not sufficient to allocate the securities among all of Roanoke's clients for whom the security would otherwise be suitable; as a result, Roanoke makes allocation decisions with respect to IPO securities on a case by case basis, based on the particular circumstances involved and the needs and objectives of its clients, including consideration of the size of the client's account and the meaningfulness of the IPO shares to the client's portfolio. Roanoke may be faced with conflicts of interest in making these allocation decisions among clients. Roanoke attempts to execute transactions for its clients at the lowest cost and best possible price. One attempt at accomplishing this is referred to as "bunching". Bunching simply means that Roanoke will purchase or sell shares in a specific security for a group of clients as if it were one transaction. This results in lower per share commissions and sometimes a more favorable execution price. Roanoke looks at a number of factors when determining whether commissions are reasonable. Commissions are negotiated based on the size of the transaction, as well as the difficulty of the execution. All negotiations are done in the context of generally established industry norms. Obviously, if a client directs brokerage, Roanoke cannot negotiate the typical discounts from established rates and will be unable to bunch that client's orders with others. The Commission rates negotiated for clients whose accounts are custodies at U. S. Trust Company are expected to be comparable to the commission rates of Roanoke's institutional clients, except in circumstances where the transaction size for individual accounts not traded as part of a block transaction is so small that a higher per-share commission or a ticket charge may be imposed by the executing broker. Roanoke allocates a small part of its brokerage commissions to pay for Thomson Reuters Financial Services. Thomson Reuters provides Roanoke with "Thomson Portfolio Analytics", a performance measurement and attribution service. These services benefit all clients. When directing brokerage for these services, Roanoke uses transactions in listed securities for payment for services where the market impact of the transaction and the effect on commission rates is deemed to be minimal. When authorized by a client, Roanoke votes proxies relating to equity securities in the client's account. Roanoke has adopted proxy voting policies and procedures which it believes are reasonably designed to insure that it votes client securities in the best interest of clients. Clients may obtain information about how Roanoke voted with respect to their securities by making a request for such information to either portfolio manager. In addition, any client may request a copy of Roanoke's proxy voting policies and procedures.
